18            Arjun walked into the office pantry. His colleague Priya looked up, smiled, and said, "Good morning!"
19   Normal people: "Good morning!" back, done.But Arjun? His brain went into Sherlock Holmes mode:Why did she smile?Was it a normal smile or a sarcastic smile?Did I spill coffee on my shirt yesterday and she's still laughing about it?What if she knows my boss is planning to fire me? Or worse… what if she likes me? But what if she doesn't? But what if she does?Wait… did I brush my teeth properly? Is it a pity smile? By the time he finished analyzing every possible meaning of that one smile, Harini had already finished her coffee, her breakfast, and probably her whole career.And Arjun? He was still standing there, smiling back like a broken WiFi router trying to reconnect.

23       <ol>
24         <li>If something can go wrong → It already did.</li>
25         <li>Reply seen, no reply = 1000 assumptions.</li>
26         <li>Night time = Thinking time, not sleeping time.</li>
27         <li>Coffee doesn't solve problems, but it delays them.</li>
28         <li>One emoji reply = Endless decoding session </li>
